

BLOG Rubric

Student Name: _____

	Criteria				Points
	4 OUTSTANDING	3 WOW!	2 SO-SO	1 OOPS!
Quality	* Prompt is always evident in writing *You always attempt deeper thinking in your writing *There is evidence of mini-lessons	*Most of the time prompt is evident in writing *You usually attempt deeper thinking in your writing *There is often evidence of mini-lessons	*Sometimes the prompt is evident in writing *You sometimes attempt deeper thinking in your writing *There is some evidence of mini-lessons	*Writing does not address the prompt *Entries are confused, they don't make sense *There is no evidence of mini-lessons	—
Quantity	*You always write on your blog *250 Words/week	*You usually write on your blog *200 Words/Week	*You often write on your blog *150 Words/Week	*Your seldom write on your blog *100 Words/week	—
Comments	You always comment on other students' posts with insightful comments that match their post. You post comments regularly.	You regularly comment on other students' posts and most of the time they are relevant to the blog post.	You rarely post comments on other students' blog posts. Your comments are not relevant to the posts.	You never post comments on other students' blogs.
Spelling and Punctuation	You reread your notebook with an editor's eye--paying attention to spelling and punctuation. There are only a few grammar errors in your posts.	You usually reread your posts with an editor's eye--paying attention to spelling and punctuation. There may be some errors in your posts but it does not detract from your writing.	You sometimes reread your blog with an editor's eye. It's often difficult for someone to ready your entries.	You do not reread your blog with an editor's eye. It is very difficult for someone to read your entries.	—
				TOTAL	—

Grading Scale:		Teacher Comments:
15 or 16	5
14 or 13	4
12 or 11	3
10 or 9	2
8 or less	1	